

Note Clue in Double Suicide Leaps

Story on Page 2

WEATHER
Fair
and Warmer

Wednesday

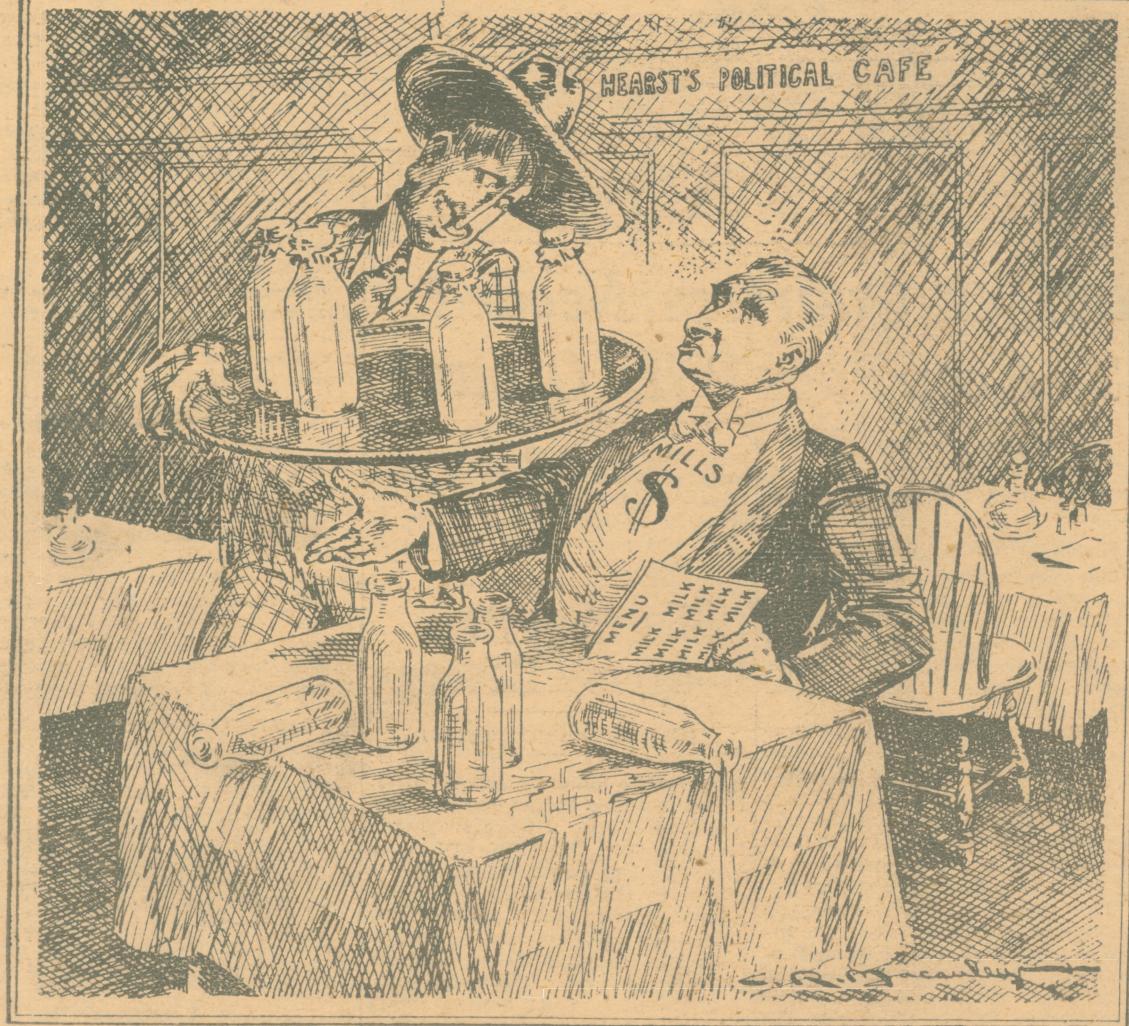

NEW YORK

EVENING GRAPHIC

October 27, 1926

Nothing but the Truth

NOTHING ELSE BUT—

Smash the Underworld!

PLANTING OF A BOMB in the county courthouse is evidence that the underworld has opened a vicious war against peaceful society.

This is apparently part of the same campaign that is causing the death of innocent citizens and brave officers of the law.

How this pernicious system works is told in part in a series of articles now appearing in The GRAPHIC.

These articles come from a man who professes familiarity with the underworld and its characters.

They reveal the fact that organized opposition is needed to stop the depredations of armed bandits.

Organized opposition must include every honest citizen as anxious to protect his home from bandits as he would be to protect it against a foreign invader in war times.

To that high type of patriotism The GRAPHIC urges its readers to devote their energies. In no other way can crime be abolished and lives and property made secure.

Murder Trial Preliminaries

IN THE Somerville county courthouse yesterday a grand jury ordered a special prosecutor out of its presence.

The same jury called this same prosecutor a liar. Other unpleasantries were fired.

This is a pitiful spectacle on the eve of a trial upon whose outcome hinge the lives of four persons.

Judicial calm and quiet have been blown out of the window by a gust of prejudice.

The GRAPHIC respectfully suggests that persons accused of murder should be tried by rules of reason and not in an atmosphere of bitter passion.

What will Jersey justice do to meet those conditions?

Follow Your Leader

IT IS pleasing to note that several New York newspapers have learned to play the innocent little game of follow your leader.

Particularly adept are the Evening Journal, the Daily Mirror and the Daily News. . . . Having decided to play the game you cannot blame these papers for picking a good leader, which of course means The GRAPHIC itself.

The GRAPHIC exposed the sham of Queen Marie's visit to this country a week ago. Playing their little game, the News and the Mirror are now following along, tripping after the leader in an effort to catch up.

The Journal yesterday followed The GRAPHIC'S lead on the expose of the breaking out of a big baseball war. . . . These three papers are to be praised for their energy in following The GRAPHIC. Other journals, too tired or too lazy, plod along in their same old ruts and never play any game. . . . That's what makes them so tiresome.

Great Thoughts of Great Men

We are all clever enough at envying a famous man while he is yet alive, and at praising him when he is dead.—Mimnarus.

Sweet are the slumbers of a virtuous man.—Addison.

The Dignity of Work

The world presents us with five types of men and women.

There is the man of physical strength who glories in his muscles.

There is the man of noble birth who takes great pride in his reprobate ancestors.

There is the man of wealth who rejoices in what he possesses.

There is the man of intelligence and knowledge who declares "the mind's the standard of the man."

Finally, there is the man of love and brotherhood whose glory is in service.

Men of muscles, mind, ancestry and wealth should all belong to this last class.

There is no value in muscles except in so far as they enable us to do and to serve.

Intellect and knowledge are equally intended to serve.

Wealth should be but a means to an end. It should never be cultivated for its own sake.

Ancestors have already served their purpose and are of no further use.

You are here. You are to work and to serve.

Service is the slogan of business today.

Often it is only a slogan.

Often it is a rule or principle of work.

All true service is dignified.

All work that is honest is honorable.

All serve who do useful work. All real service is honorable and respectable. All work must be done.

There are no menial tasks; no degrading forms of true service.

All work that is worth doing is worth doing well.

You should try, at all times, to do just a little better work than the other fellow.

Try to improve your own work each day.

Seek to give more and better service, to produce more and better goods.

Whatever you do, do it well.

By so doing you not only benefit others, but yourself as well.

Civilization is built on labor. Those who work with their hands and brains have built civilization.

The workers of the past and present have made civilization what it is.

The workers of the present and future will make civilization what it is to be.

Modern life is founded on work.

Idlers, shirkers—these should have no place in the life of a community.

There is work enough for all if it is properly distributed, and all should work.

Voluntary idleness, except temporarily for purposes of rest and recuperation, should be looked upon as an evil, like prostitution and theft.

It is theft.

The idler eats that which he does not earn.

He lives off those who work—he is a parasite.

Many parents do not want their children to have to work.

No greater evil could befall such children.

Teach them to work and to serve.

Bernarr Macfadden

WHAT HAVE YOU TO SAY?

All letters to the Editor must bear names and addresses or will not be published.

JEWS ILL-TREATED

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:

While Queen Marie is enjoying her visit to the United States, the Jews in her own country are being subjected to inhuman treatment. The Jews in Rumania are treated worse today than in any other country, but still the civilized world does not seem to realize it.

PHILLYS PELETZ.

126 Riverside Drive.

QUEEN'S VISIT

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:

I think it was wonderful of The GRAPHIC to expose Queen Marie's real reason for visiting this country. It was the only newspaper which had sufficient courage to print the truth.

BELLE PAVLOWA.

The Bronx.

(Other Letters on Page 18)